

Julian Lehnhoff

qualified lawyer, born in 1990, studied law at the Philipps University in Marburg. Already during his studies, he focused on health law and acquired a supplementary qualification in pharmaceutical law in addition to his core subject studies in medical and pharmaceutical law. After completing his studies, Julian Lehnhoff worked as an academic assistant at the Research Center for Pharmaceutical Law at the Philipps University of Marburg and was responsible for various lectures, workshops, seminars and conferences on medical and pharmaceutical law topics. From 2016 to 2018, he completed his mandatory legal traineeship, among others, with a specialist lawyer for medical law and with a German-Spanish commercial law firm in Madrid.

Julian Lehnhoff has been admitted to the bar in 2018. He initially worked for a large internationally active German commercial law firm in the fields of intellectual property and food law.

Julian Lehnhoff has been part of the Meisterernst Rechtsanwälte team since August 2020. He represents and advises clients in general competition and business law as well as in all matters of pharmaceutical, medical device and food law. His practice focuses in particular on delimitation issues and regulatory and competition law topics concerning pharmaceuticals, medical devices, food and cosmetics, as well as issues in the area of statutory health insurance.

Julian Lehnhoff advises in German and English and is fluent in Spanish.
